

Conditional tense

Yesterday, while I was walking through the park, I found a box filled with money. At first I was happy because, well, who wouldn't be happy in this situation? But after a while I began to worry, and I decided to take it to the police station. Last night I asked some of my friends what they would have done. John said that he would have bought a new car—there were at least 6 ten thousand dollars. Ana told me that she would have donated the money to charity. Roberto said he would have left the box alone and (would have) left (from) the park immediately. What you have done?
