

Pieces by Chris Lynch is the story of an eighteen year old boy, Eric, who has recently lost his brother in a diving accident. The two were very close so he struggles with both grief and anger at his brother, Duane. The family made the decision to donate his brothers organs. About a year after his death, Eric begins to make contact with the recipients of Duane's organs. The book is well written with some humor in the way Eric works through his grief while getting to know the people whose lives have been affected by his family's decision.

It is a quick read at only 168 pages but also a highly recommended one for those who like realistic fiction.

I hope you will give it a try! Mrs. Carr